 - i. Commissioners have welcomed many great presenters this year.
 - ii. Along with funding incoming requests, there is a desire to be more proactive and purposeful in assisting youth and sharing the Youth Commission message in the community.
 - iii. Reflections are as follows:
 - a. Many presenters highlighted the need for a parenting education component.
 - b. Across the board, kids are feeling a lot of stress and pressure and are not learning how to fail.
 - c. Mentoring is important, both kids and adults and kids with other kids due to the fact many children listen to other kids more than they listen to adults.
 - d. Childcare is a concern for Lazarus House.
 - e. Identify ways to boost confidence and tap into at risk kids who go under the radar.
 - f. Transportation issues need to be addressed.
 - g. Times of transition are hard (i.e. elementary to middle school, middle school to high school).
 - h. Consider digital component – web and text-based support and resources are available.
 - i. Collaboration with community partners is important and beneficial.
 - j. Summer can be unpredictable when kids do not have a routine.
 - k. ACES are factors that put kids at high risk for behavioral and mental health concerns.
 - iv. To address these needs and concerns, commissioners would like to:
 - a. Create a network of volunteers.
 - b. Expand collaboration with community partners.
 - c. Look into ways to address transportation concerns and access to services.
- C. Schedule an annual report presentation with City Council for a date in August or September. If additional funding is desired for the next fiscal year, this needs to be brought to City Administration's attention by November.
